News from Entire County in Condensed Form

Another continuance was chalked up last Thursday in the Federal court of Judge Carpenter when Sheriff Edwin Ahlstrom was called upon to show cause why he should not be held in contempt of court for having taken two fair prisoners out on a party when they were supposed to be held as witnesses in a government case. This time the case was put off until June 30.

Truman Taylor, 21 years old, a nephew of Dr. J. L. Taylor of Libertyville, Lake county coroner, died at Illinois hospital in Honolulu, a week ago Sunday, newspaper dispatches say, from injuries received when he ventured too close to the erupting crater of Kilauea volcano on the island of Hawaii.

The place of Edward Fichter at Fox Lake was closed by a temporary injunction issued in the circuit court at the request of States Attorney A. V. Smith. An information was filed to county court charging Fichter with violation of the prohibitory law. It was alleged he sold liquor to Artie Loch of Chicago, whose murdered body was found at Ingleside a week ago last Sunday.

The White Fox added the third victory to its list at the Athletic park, on Sunday, May 18, by defeating the Wilmet Legion team by a score of 3 to 1. Wedekind pitched airtight ball until the sixth, when Higgins landed a safe hit and advanced to third when Hegeman dropped a third strike, and a second later he was given a base on a balk by Wedekind. This seemed to weaken Wedekind and in the next inning three hits added two runs to the score.

A reward of $500 was put up by the board of supervisors last week as an incentive for the solution of the murder of Arthur Loch, of Chicago, whose body was found recently on the tracks of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railway about one mile from Ingleside. State's Attorney A. V. Smith announced the reward. He had brought the reward proposition before President Fred Krichner and several members of the board and had succeeded in getting the money posted. The reward will be given to the person or persons who advance information that will lead to the arrest and conviction of those responsible for the murder. Nothing new has come up on the horizon to lead the sheriff's office or the state's attorney to new clues in the murder.

Messrs. Hecker and Peters of the Milwaukee Electric railway were in Lincoln recently seeking to interest Lincoln business men in routing a bus line through Richmond. The company already operates thru Lake Geneva and Burlington and other Wisconsin towns, giving good freight and passenger services to and from Milwaukee. Two weeks ago the service was extended to Geneva City, and now the company seeks to extend the route to Hebron and Richmond, which can be done at very little extra expense, the officials say.

Owners of radio receiving sets will have them listed as taxable property by assessors this year for the first time, it is stated. When assessors in most Illinois counties were given their instructions to add the wireless device to the list of articles upon which a tax must be paid the ensuing year.

Because of the tremendous increase in the number of radio enthusiasts and the number of radio receiving sets, the tax bill on these devices alone next year will amount to a considerable sum, it is predicted.

Radio sets are classed as personal property and it is just as easy to find them as other types of visible property. They will bear a tax burden the same as household goods and other classes of property which assessors have listed as taxable in past years.

Radio fans find delight in their receiving sets and it is a positive pleasure to listen in on what is transpiring most any night in San Francisco, New York City, Atlanta, Sidney, Australia, and other far off points because the addresses and concerts to be heard are stellar events.

20 Years Ago in Antioch

Thursday, May 26, 1904

Misses Ada and Pearl Lux were in Chicago on Monday.

Walter Taylor was a Chicago passenger on Monday morning.

The "Gifford" hotel at Channel will be opened for the season this week.

Miss Fannie Deenick has accepted a position as clerk in Williams Bros. store.

A new cement walk has been laid on the north side of Lake, avenue from the corner of Main street to S. Higgins property, which is a great improvement to the street property.

On Saturday evening of this week will occur the commencement exercises of the Antioch High School at the opera house. Appropriate exercises have been arranged and a small admission fee will be charged.

The cement sidewalk that is this week being put down by Ira Soule is not only a credit to him but to the town as well. If the property owners only felt that they could afford to have their walks on Main street replaced during the summer in connection with the new brick buildings this would add greatly to the appearance of our town. The improvements in front of the property of J. J. Morley is much admired by all interested in the good work. We understand that Messrs. Thayer, Webb and Sibbey will also have cement walks in front of their new buildings.

Court Stops Traffic Here in T. B. Cattle

Traffic in tubercular cattle in Lake County must cease. Any effort to import cattle suffering of tuberculosis into this county with the avowed purpose of treating them for the plague and then disposing of them for food, will meet with speedy prosecution. This action will be taken as the result of the refusal of the courts to mandamus the department of agriculture to grant a permit to the Lake county stock farm to buy an infected tubercular cattle. A special dispatch to the Waukegan Sun from Springfield tells of the court action:

Buying tubercular cattle, curing them and reselling them in Illinois stands under ban under a decision handed down by Judge Smith in the Sangamon county circuit court. The decision stated that the Illinois department of agriculture had sole and full power to make and administer rules for handling tubercular cattle and that the court had no power in the matter.

A suit brought by John W. Novak and Dr. Peter P. Duket, owners of the 250 acre Duket-Novak stock farm in Lake county, asked for a writ of mandamus against the department of agriculture, ordering it to issue them a permit to buy tubercular cattle and taken the animals to the Lake county farm there to be treated for the disease and resold. The Lake county men claimed they had a newly formulated and secret tuberculin treatment that would render a cow so free from tuberculosis that she could easily pass the government meat inspection.

The state department was supported in its stand against issuing such a permit by both the Chicago Live Stock Exchange and the Illinois Agricultural Association. If the department of agriculture did not have the power to restrain trading in tubercular cattle, the work of eradicating the dreaded disease would be mortally impaired, M. H. Peterson, director of the association's tuberculosis eradication department said.

There is no known cure for bovine tuberculosis and the proposed Novak-Duket treatment would have to be proved effective by exhaustive experimental work before the United States department of agriculture would sanction its use, Dr. John R. Mohler, director of the federal bureau of animal industry, said in a telegram to the Chicago Live Stock Exchange.

WARRANTS OUT FOR THREE IN SCHOOL CASE

Warrants were issued by Justice Chas. E. Mason for three Round Lake persons charging them with law violation of the law concerning non-attendance in school.

The warrants were directed against Pete Peterson, Leo Hendee and Wm. Hironimus and were sworn out by T. Arthur Simpson, county superintendent of schools.

An Editorial

The star has always been recognized as a symbol of official power to act in the upholding of the law "invested by the public or their spokesmen."

Anyone displaying a star without this authority, under the law, is liable to arrest. Complaints have been made of acts of discourtesy toward visitors to our village. These acts have not been traced to official police of the village, but young men who have evidently believed themselves empowered with police duties through foreign organization. This practice must stop. The town is getting uncalled for notoriety, and to make it doubly hard, our invested officers are shouldering all the blame. As the situation now stands this village has invested power in a day marshal and a night marshal, Mr. Simonson and Mr. Thompson. The township has invested power in two constables Mr. Thompson and Mr. Horan.

Any case of violation of the law should be reported to any of these officers. Any attempt on the part of other citizens of this village other than the town officials to exercise the power of police should be reported. Antioch does not want a repetition of the reputation attained a few years back. We are spending a large amount of money to bring people here. For anyone to make things disagreeable to visitors without just cause is working directly against the interest of the village.

Gossip on reported cases must also cease. It is remarkable the proportion a case increases after three or four tellings. An officer has a disagreeable enough job without enlarging on any shortcomings. We are not all infallible. But the man who is making it his duty to uphold the law should know just a little more about specific cases than the gossiping bystander.

When all is said and done, the docket of the local magistrates and justices of the peace show comparatively few cases. Twenty-five entries will cover the three official judges reports over a period of nearly a year—two a month. Under these facts, where is the foundation for wholesale arrests gossip.

Discuss Local Police System at A. B. C. Meet

At the A. B. C. meeting Monday evening there were some very interesting subjects brought out. The advertising for the lake region was discussed and some changes made in the plan, otherwise the consensus of opinion seemed to be in favor of the profits submitted.

A committee on the dinner for the next meeting was selected. Mr. Horan, Mr. Buschmann and Mr. Gelstrup. The dinner will be held on Monday, June 9th.

A very lengthy discussion was held on the police of this town. Complaints were heard and discussed. Mr. Bartlett said he would look into complaint that there were stars being carried by men who did not have authority to carry them.

Mr. Art reported that the bus line hearing before the Commerce Commission, scheduled for Wednesday, had been postponed.

Mr. Dressel, chairman of the advertising committee reported 23 pages of the 32-page book as being sold. The firemen petitioned the Business club for help in defraying expenses of the last fireman's day. The club voted to stand half of the expenses.

LOCAL HIGH PLACES THIRD IN LIVE STOCK CONTEST

Results of the Livestock Judging contest held at Woodstock, May 17, were announced recently. Antioch Township high school placed third in the Dairy and sixth in the Fat Stock Judging contest. Harvard and Woodstock placed first and second respectively in the Dairy classes. Ten schools competed. Richard Kennedy, and Elmer Barthel from the local school tied for second honors in the dairy contest and Lewis Barthel placed second in the hog ring. The poorest work done by the local school was in the horse ring.

Coach Kuttel is highly elated over the results, especially when he takes into consideration that most of the members on the team are Freshmen and that a course in Animal Husbandry is not being given this year. The local team will go to Urbana June 23rd.

Around Our Town

The first of the series of ads to be run in Chicago papers advertising this section appeared in Wednesday's Tribune. The second will appear Friday.

The Goddess of Chance appears to be against us so far this season. Only one good week end so far.

Here's hoping we can make up for it over the three-day holiday this week.

After the publicity committee of the A. B. C. get the advertising plan straightened out they will tackle the matter of signs.

Peculiar how papers like to pick up the "big fellows." The papers last week raised a great hullabaloo about Fred Lundin being arrested for speeding at Lake Villa. It later turned out that Lundin was not in the car at all. Those that know him say he will not drive over 25 miles an hour.

To make the story snappier they had Lundin as appealing the fine. This was true, but Lundin had a real public service to view when he did this.

There are no signs at Lake Villa announcing the town limits or speed, and according to the state law you are entitled to travel at 35 miles an hour except where notified by proper signs to the contrary.

It is reported the state is supposed to mark speed limits on all state roads. Col. Miller, who has charge of this work, is taking advantage of a technical point in not placing these signs in the fact that the State has not accepted the road at Lake Villa.

They say Lundin is contesting the case to force Miller to put up the signs—More power to him.

Guess the Woman's club believes in signs all right. They have just posted one to lead the way to the library.

They tell us that Del Sablin has consented to the use of his lot next to the fire station for a parking space. That's the berries.

Robert C. Abt and Frank Hamlin of Lake Villa had a conference with "Bill" Stratton, the state game warden, Saturday night at Ingleside to see if he could pave the way for the committee selected to wait on the Governor and get some action on the Loon Lake grade crossing.

Mr. Stratton tells us that his latest information on the subject is that the matter is all straightened out and that the commission is to build an overhead bridge. The plans call for bridge a little north of the present grade crossing.

Incidentally he alluded us the information that the state is to maintain these gaps in the road.

Nether Mr. Abt nor Mr. Hamlin were very enthusiastic about asking Mr. Stratton's aid after making the trip down to Bill's home. We are traveling in paradise along side of that section of the country and it certainly is a case of "Why don't you speak for yourself John."

The Fox Lake roads are in very bad condition and the completion of the road building program will be a Godsend to them.

Local Youths Gather Prizes at Celebration

The firemen's day last Thursday was a big success. The weather man was good enough to clear the skies and with a cleared Main street, those who attended were treated to an afternoon of real fun.

The program started with a parade led by the Simmons band of Kenosha. After the show races started, and with Alec Hughes as a participant it appeared and was a foregone conclusion that he would romp over the finish line a winner. The other races including the bicycle race, egg races, pie eating contest and others kept the crowd on their toes with excitement and laughter for the most of the afternoon. The Rotmou troop entertained with a short program.

The chatter of the Indian rug man made the lotto chance, with the program finished by the band altogether made a very lively afternoon.

The committee in charge urge the appearance of every World War veteran that can possibly be there in uniform.

The parade will march to the cemetery, where exercises will be conducted by the Rev. Fr. Flawer of the St. Ignatius Episcopal church. A quartet will sing at the cemetery. The Boy Scout band is expected to lead the parade.

SCHOOL CHILDREN PICNIC ON TUESDAY

Races of all kinds will be held for the young folks, with suitable prizes. And last but not least eats will be had at noon.

Cars to help take the bunch down to the lake will be appreciated, also the use of a few trucks will be greatly needed for both trips.

Junior-Senior Banquet Has Novel Entertainment

The most attractive social event of the school year was held last Friday night at the high school when the juniors banqueted the seniors. Nothing was left undone in preparing for this event. The stage was converted into an appropriate reception and music room by the aid of draperies, floor lamps and parlor furniture. Music was furnished by the victrola and piano.

At eight o'clock the guests were conducted to the dining room which had been elaborately decorated in the senior colors. The plan of the decoration was a canopied garden scene with flowers interwoven on the lattice walls, the transformation being made by means of crepe paper and Japanese lanterns. The tables were arranged in the form of a hollow square and decorated with ribbons, candles and flowers of the appropriate colors.

The forty-five persons who were privileged to attend the banquet maintained that the five course menu was in strict keeping with the exquisite decorations.

Not the least attractive part of the evening's entertainment was the aviation tour enjoyed after the dinner. Mr. Bright as toastmaster conducted the tour by means of responses to the appropriate subjects by members of the classes and faculty. The following subjects were used in making the tour: Last Word from the Bystanders, Cornelia Roberts; Response from the Flyers, Albert Herman; The Ship, Ward Abt; The Commander and Officers, Elmer Kufalk; The Cargo, Miss Olson; Gas, Mr. Watson; Destination, Augusta Lucker; Radiograms to Those Left Behind, Ada Chino.

Miss Smith, as faculty advisor, and Cornelia Roberts as junior class president, together with the committees from the class, cannot be commended too highly for the splendid way in which they prepared and conducted this banquet. There is a useful training derived from such a function that can be obtained in no other way.

JOSEPH WESTLAKE PASSED AWAY

Joseph Westlake an old and highly respected resident of Antioch passed away at his home here Sunday evening after being ill for over a week with pneumonia.

The funeral services were held at the Antioch Methodist church on Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock with Rev. S. E. Pollock officiating. The Masonic lodge of which he was a member had charge of the services at the cemetery.

He was laid to rest in the Antioch Hillside cemetery.

Zen of The Y.D.

A NOVEL OF THE FOOTHILLS

by Robert Stead

AUTHOR OF "THE COW PUNCHER" "THE HOMESTEADERS" "NEIGHBORS" ETC

Copyright by Robert Stead

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I.—Transley's hay-cutting outfit, after stacking 2,000 tons, is on its way to the big Y.D. ranch headquarters. Transley is a master of men and circumstances. Linder, foreman, is substantial, but not self-assertive. George Drak, one of the men, is an irresponsible chap who proposes to every woman he meets. Transley and Linder dine with Y.D. and his wife and daughter Zen. Y.D. instructs Transley to cut the South Y.D. "apette o' h-l an' high water" and a fellow named Landson.

CHAPTER II.—Drak proposes to Zen and is neatly rebuffed. Transley pitches camp on the South Y.D. and finds Landson's outfit cutting hay. Drak tries to seduce Zen, but she is not interested. Transley resolves to cut the South Y.D. "apette o' h-l an' high water" and a fellow named Landson.

CHAPTER III.—Y.D. and Zen ride to the South Y.D. Zen is a natural rider, but Y.D. is not. They find Landson's outfit cutting hay. Drak tries to seduce Zen, but she is not interested. Transley resolves to cut the South Y.D. "apette o' h-l an' high water" and a fellow named Landson.

CHAPTER IV.—Zen enjoys the prospect of a race between Transley and Linder for her favor, but secretly more serious concern with Drak. Y.D. stakes out in the grass. Zen prevents open war with Landson. Drak half-way proposes and is turned off. Drak resolves to burn out the rival outfit.

CHAPTER V.—Fire blazes up in the Landson stacks. The Y.D. outfit hastens to aid the enemy. Zen rides off alone to help. The wind changes and the Y.D. people now have to fight the prairie fire. Zen rides into the river to escape flames. Drak tries to seduce her. She drowns him—or thinks she has. Grant overtakes her. In trying to ride through fire Zen is thrown and knocked senseless.

CHAPTER VI

When Zen came to herself it was with a sense of a strange swimming in her head. Gradually it resolved itself into a sound of water about her head; a splashing, fighting water; two heads in the water; two heads in the water; a flash floating in the water—

"Oh! She was sure she felt water on her face."

"Where am I?"

"You're all right—you'll be all right in a little while."

"But where am I? What has happened?" She tried to sit up. All was dark. "Where am I?" she demanded.

"Don't be alarmed, Zen—I think your name is Zen," she heard a man's voice saying. "You've been hurt, but you'll be all right presently."

Then the curtain lifted. "You are Dennison Grant," she said. "I remember you now. But what has happened? Why am I here—with you?"

"Well, so far, you've been enjoying about three hours' unconsciousness," he told her. "At a distance which seems about a mile from here—although it may be less—is a little pond. I've carried water in the sleeve of my coat—fortunately it is leather—and poured it somewhat generously upon your brow. And at last I've been rewarded by a conscious word."

She tried to sit up, but desisted when a sudden twitch of pain held her fast.

"Let me help you," he said, gently. "We have camped, as you may notice, on a big, flat rock. I found it not far from the scene of the accident, so I carried you over to it. It is drier than the earth, and, for the forepart of the night at least, will be warmer."

With a strong arm about her shoulders he drew her into a sitting posture.

Her eyes were becoming accustomed to the darkness. "What's wrong with my foot?" she demanded. "My boot's off."

"I'm afraid you turned your ankle getting free from your stirrup," he explained. "I had to do a little surgery. I could find nothing broken. It will be painful, but I fear there is nothing to do but bear it."

She reached down and felt her foot. It was neatly bandaged with cloth very much like that which she had used to bindfold Quiver. It was easy to surmise where it came from. Evidently her protector had stopped at nothing.

"Well, are we to stay here permanently?" she asked, presently.

"Only for the night," he told her. "If we're lucky, not that long. Search parties will be hunting for you, and they will doubtless ride this way. Both of our horses bolted in the fire."

"Oh, yes, the first! Tell me what happened."

He hesitated.

"I remember riding into the fire," she continued, "and then next thing I was on this rock. How did it all happen?"

"Your horse fell," he explained, "just as you reached the fire, and threw you, pretty heavily, to the ground. I was behind, so I dismounted and dragged you through."

"Oh!" She felt her face. "But I am not even stung!" she exclaimed.

It was plain that he was holding something back. She turned and laid her fingers on his arm. "Tell me how you did it," she pressed.

The darkness hid his modest confusion. "It was really nothing," he stammered. "You see, I had a leather coat, and I just threw it over your head—and mine—and dragged you out."

She was silent for a moment while the meaning of his words came home to her. Then she placed her hand frankly in his.

"Thank you," she said, and even in the darkness she knew that their eyes had met.

"You are very resourceful," she continued, presently. "Must we sit here all night?"

"I can think of no alternative," he confessed. "If we had firearms we could shoot a signal, or if there were grass about we could start a fire, although it probably would not be noticed with so many glows on the horizon tonight." He stopped to look about. Dull splashes of red in the sky pointed out remnants of the day's conflagration still eating their way through the foothills. The air was full of the pungent but not unpleasant smell of burnt grass.

"A pretty hard night to send a signal," he said, "but they're almost sure to ride this way."

She wondered why he did not offer to walk to the camp for help; it could not be more than four or five miles. Suddenly she thought she understood.

"I am not afraid to stay here alone," she said, with a little laugh. "It was the first time Grant had heard her laugh, and he thought it very musical indeed. "I've slept out many a night, and you would be back within a couple of hours."

"I'm quite sure you're not afraid," he agreed, "but, you see, I am. You got quite a tap on the head, and for some time before you came to you were talking—rather foolishly. Now if I should leave you it is not only possible, but quite probable, that you would lapse again into unconsciousness. . . . I really think you'll have to put up with me here."

"Oh, I wasn't thinking of that! . . . Did I—did I talk—foolishly?"

"Rather. Seemed to think you were swimming—or fighting—I couldn't be sure which. Sometimes you seemed to be doing both."

"Oh!" With a cold chill the events of the day came back upon her. That struggle in the water; it came to her now like a bad dream out of the long, long past. How much had she said? How much would she have given to know what she had said! She felt herself recounting events.

Presently she pulled herself up with a start. She must not let him think her moody.

"Well, if we must enjoy each other's company, we may as well do so companionably," she said, with an effort at gaiety. "Let us talk. Tell me about yourself."

"First things first," he parried. "Oh, I've nothing to tell. My life has been very unromantic. A few years at school, and the rest of it on the range. A very every-day kind of existence."

"I think it's the 'every-day kind of existence' that is romantic," he returned. "It is a great mistake to think of romance as belonging to other times and other places. Even the most commonplace person has experienced romance enough for a dozen books. Quite possibly he has not recognized the romance, but it was there. The trouble is that with our limited sense of humor, what we think of as romance in other people's lives becomes tragedy in our own."

How much did he know? . . . "Yes," she said, "I suppose that is so."

"I know it is so," he went on, "if we could read the thoughts—know the experiences—of those nearest to us, we would never need to look out of our own circles for either romance or tragedy. But it is as well that we can't. Take the experience of today, for example. I admit it has not been a commonplace day, and yet it has not been altogether extraordinary. Think of the experiences we have been through just this day, and how, if they were presented in fiction, they would be romantic, almost unbelievable. And here we are at the close, sitting on a rock, matter-of-fact people in a matter-of-fact world, accepting everything as commonplace and unexceptional."

"Not quite that," she said daringly. "I see that you are neither commonplace nor unexceptional." She spoke with sudden impulse out of the depth of her sincerity. She had not met a man like this before. In her mind she fixed him in contrast with Transley, the self-confident and aggressive, and Linder, the shy and unassertive. None of those adjectives seemed to fit this new acquaintance. Nevertheless, he suffered nothing by the contrast.

Nevertheless, he suffered nothing by the contrast.

"I see that you are neither commonplace nor unexceptional," she said daringly. "I see that you are neither commonplace nor unexceptional." She spoke with sudden impulse out of the depth of her sincerity. She had not met a man like this before. In her mind she fixed him in contrast with Transley, the self-confident and aggressive, and Linder, the shy and unassertive. None of those adjectives seemed to fit this new acquaintance. Nevertheless, he suffered nothing by the contrast.

"If I had been bright enough I would have said that first," he apologized, "but I got rather carried away in one of my pet theories about romance. Now my life, I suppose, to many people would seem quite tame and unromantic, but to me it has been a delightful succession of somewhat placid adventures. It began in a very orthodox way, in a very orthodox family. My father, under the guidance, no doubt, of whatever star governs such lucky affairs, became possessed of a comfortable fortune, and I was brought up to fit my station in life, whatever that means. There were just two boys of us, and I was the elder. My father had become a broker. He wanted me to go into the office with him, but some way I didn't fit in. I've no doubt there was lots of romance there, too, but I was of the wrong nature; I simply couldn't get enthusiastic over it. Being of a frank disposition I confided in my father that I felt I was wasting my time in a broker's office. He, being of an equally frank disposition, confided in me that he entertained the same opinion.

"I could see that my father was pained and disappointed, even in his anger. 'You have upset all my plans, you have destroyed all my hopes,' he charged me. His voice was hard, but I think that was to keep it from breaking. 'What's the use of making money if you haven't a son to carry on?'—that is my younger brother—is too young as yet, and, I think, a trifle reckless for responsibility. I was counting on you to take up the load when I laid it down. Besides, he went on, 'I had other plans for your future.' The dear old fellow had been giving more thought to it than I had suspected. 'Within a few years you should marry. Now there's Emily Forcep—that wasn't her name, but it will do for purposes of conversation—good family, and well off. Colonel Forcep and I are agreed that it would be just the thing. Capital match for you, my boy—'

"But," I protested, "I don't love Miss Forcep. Why, I hardly know her!"

"That will come in time," said he. 'You're at the romantic age just now, but later you'll understand it isn't hard to love a girl who is well brought up and has a million in her own right—'

"At that I flared up. 'Nothing doing,' I said, very disrespectfully, I am afraid. 'If your business, and your money, and Miss Forcep, and her money, not to speak of Colonel Forcep, have to be counted as a going concern, you can keep the lot. My life is my own and I'm going to live it in my own way.'"

Grant paused, and the girl found her fingers resting on his knee.

It was very delightful to have the curtain lifted on this strong man's career.

"Go on," she whispered.

"I've been sorry for it since—not for what I did; I've never been sorry for that—but for what I said. You see, my life wasn't my own; it was his, who gave it to me; his, and my dead mother's. But young fellows don't think of that—not, at least, until it is too late."

"Well, there was more talk, and the upshot was that I got out, accompanied by an assurance from my father that I never would be burdened with any of the family duties. Roy succeeded to the worries of wealth and I came to the ranges, where I have been able to make a living, and have, incidentally, been profoundly happy. I'll take a wager that today I look ten years younger than Roy, that I can lick him with one hand, that I have more real friends than he has, and that I'm getting more out of life than he is. I'm a man of whims. When they beckon I follow."

Grant paused, feeling that his enthusiasm had carried him into rather fuller confidences than he had intended.

Montana's corn crop increased to 365,000 acres in 1923 from 1,600 acres planted in 1900, according to reports to the United States Department of Agriculture. Among the important factors bringing about this rapid increase are the need of the farmers for home-grown livestock feed; the importance of a tilled crop in the rotation to control weeds; the work of the agricultural experiment station in developing acclimated varieties, and in making tests which showed that wheat sown on well-prepared corn land will yield as much as on summer fallow; and the extension of the results of the studies to farmers by State and county agricultural extension workers.

A Business Barometer

The Public Service Company is an Illinois Corporation, operated and managed by Illinoisans, serving electric light and power or gas to 202 Illinois cities and towns; its more than 3,700 employees are residents of the communities served and, of its more than 21,500 stockholder-owners, 92% are residents of Illinois, the majority of them being customers of the Company.

THE sales of electric or gas service by the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois act as a barometer of composite business and living conditions in the territory served by this Company.

Increased sales of electric light and power and gas reflect—

1. Growth and development—general progress—production economies.
2. Greater conveniences in the home—better living conditions.

That the barometer reading of Northern Illinois is promising, is indicated by an increase of 21.2 per cent in this Company's light and power sales and 18.7 per cent in gas sales during the first three months of 1924 as compared to the corresponding period of the year 1923.

The following table shows the constant increase in this Company's sales of gas and electricity and the gain in number of customers over the last ten years:

Year	Kilowatt Hours of Electricity Generated	Cubic Feet of Gas Made	Total Customers
1914	140,264,161	3,034,237,659	113,607
1915	142,914,677	3,097,386,785	127,561
1916	164,538,950	3,245,858,500	144,026
1917	214,702,816	3,258,150,000	157,860
1918	286,871,662	3,381,360,675	162,014
1919	326,697,051	3,346,336,000	172,483
1920	367,916,534	3,184,046,000	184,609
1921	359,410,664	2,734,393,000	199,222
1922	366,843,534	3,087,378,000	220,160
1923	403,886,488	3,535,537,000	252,981

The growth of this Company and that of the territory it serves are so inter-dependent that, when you talk about the progress of the Public Service Company, you talk about the progress of Northern Illinois.

WHAT A JOINT STOCK LAND BANK IS AND HOW IT OPERATES IN MAKING FARM LOANS

A Joint Stock Land Bank is a farm loan bank operating under Government supervision. It gets its charter under the Federal Farm Loan Act passed by Congress in 1916. This Act was passed for the special benefit of the farmer and gives him advantages not shared by any other class of borrowers. Loans are made by these banks to farmers secured by first mortgages on land. These mortgages are made for a long time, at present 38 years, which means that the loan can run as long as the farmer wishes it to. He has the privilege of paying it off any time after five years without extra charge.

The farmer pays 5³/₄% interest on the loan and 3⁴/₄% additional. The 3⁴/₄% additional is paid on the principal. The interest is payable semi-annually. His semi-annual payment is $32.50 per $1,000. Everything over 5³/₄% goes to the reduction of the loan. If the farmer wants to pay the loan in part or full, he can do so on any interest date after five years. When five years are reached he has not only paid his 5³/₄% interest with these small payments, but he has also reduced his principal to $957.26 per $1,000, a reduction of $42.74 on each $1,000.

That his boy may be a sporty frat,
And thinks it's quite all right at that,
It's Father!

Who is it buys the bread and meat
Who keeps the shoes on all our feet
And then gets shoved in a back seat,

SUCCESSFUL MILK CAMPAIGN IN BENTON COUNTY, IOWA

By starting with a community meeting in every one of 24 communities in the county, a very successful milk utilization campaign was carried on in Benton county, Iowa, through the efforts of the home demonstration agent and the State milk utilization specialist. A total of 9,956 persons was reached through these meetings, each of which included a trained local woman speaker, a program arranged by the community school, and the judging of milk posters made by the school children.

The local farm bureau cooperated with the school in arranging meetings, and a health playlet, pageant, or song was given by each school as part of its program. Such titles as "The Queen of Moods," "Doctor and Patient," "Fairies of Healthland," "The Carpenters' Union," and "Dr. Milk Bottle" show the type of entertainment given. A business men's club offered prizes of 50 cents and 25 cents for the best and next best posters in each school, and prizes ranging from $5.00 down to $1.00 for the best posters when all the winners in the county competed with each other.

Another feature of the milk-utilization campaign, according to a report received by the United States Department of Agriculture, was a survey of the children in the county to learn how many did or did not drink milk and how many were accustomed to drinking tea and coffee. Every town in the county had one or more exhibits in store windows, emphasizing the value of milk in the diet. The home demonstration agent furnished the suggestions for these exhibits and the local people carried them out. Lodges, business men, physicians, the Red Cross, the farm bureau, and the schools all gave valuable assistance in the campaign and helped to make it a success.

In connection with the follow-up work after the campaign was over, a milk booth was set up at the county picnic, and was patronized by hundreds of visitors.

To the Party with the Soft Spot in His Head

I wish to state that the party who is going around and informing people falsely about me selling cattle with mortgages on them is telling a direct falsehood, and I defy him to face it. The same party tried to work me some time ago, but failed, and now he is using his hammer to knock me at one of his dirty tricks. The party who sold these cattle is not worried one bit, for he went to the bank with me when I had them released. So keep on with your hammer, and I will get you an all-day sucker.

an airplane is a hazardous sport, not only from the point of view of law violation, but because of the actual physical risk involved. The Biological Survey of the United States Department of Agriculture recently received a letter from a violator apprehended in Oklahoma for shooting wild geese from an airplane. The letter said in part:

"The whole thing started in a spirit of adventure, and we had no knowledge that we were violating any game laws. We first conceived the idea to up and shoot the geese on the ground, then land and do the best we could slipping up on them. Some bystander made the remark that a goose flew faster than a plane and that it was impossible to get near enough to kill one from a plane. In a dare-devil spirit we decided to demonstrate, and since it is so hazardous I never would have guessed that it was against the law. In the first place, it is necessary to be out on the wing, and if strapped or tied on in any way it is almost impossible to shoot accurately, then all conditions such as visibility, perfect operation of the motor, and a skillful pilot are necessary. To my mind a man takes his life in his own hands, and after the one successful shoot I had enough. I nearly fell off at one time, and was very much excited and elated when we landed, but as I remember it we got only four or five geese."

WOMAN HEALTH INSPECTOR RESULT OF RAT CAMPAIGN

As a result of an antirrat campaign at Little Rock, Ark., an ordinance was passed providing for rat-proof construction of buildings and for cleaning up of rubbish. Active steps were taken to enforce the garbage-disposal ordinance, which was already in effect. So much interest was aroused that the city is employing a health inspector to look after the enforcement of these ordinances.

ANTIOCH'S PROSPERITY

Antioch can be prosperous only when folks in this community have set their hearts in that direction and have contributed the energy necessary to bring that condition about. Antioch will be prosperous in reality when every citizen has assumed his or her share of civic responsibility.

Community progress means good government, clean minds the spirit of service, alleviation of poverty, absence of unemployment, increase of cooperation and -avoidance of waste.

And this progress will not come from any single effort. Every one of us in Antioch must constantly strive for the betterment of the community in every way possible.

Let us have the courage, energy, enterprise and patriotic service to make Antioch an example and inspiration to other communities.

Let us make our town more than a mere plot of ground on which we live. Let us work toward what Antioch should be. Then, with all working together, "the ideal community" will inevitably be the comment wherever the name of our town is mentioned.

That the spirit of cooperation exists in Antioch and its surrounding territory is shown in the publicity campaign inaugurated this week. The first of a series of ads appeared Wednesday, May 28th, in the Chicago Tribune. The second will appear Friday, May 30th. Support of every single person in "Greater Antioch" is asked in extending to the strangers who will be attracted to this vicinity a glad welcome and cheerful help in directing them in their journey.

The high school board of the U. F. H. School has received word that this school has received an appropriation of $13000 federal aid for the agricultural work done according to the Smith-Hughes plan under the able direction of Mr. Prin. R. S. Hlenfeldt. $1300 is the maximum aid to be given under the plan. The fact that this amount of federal aid has been secured speaks very high for the quality of agricultural work being done in the local school and of the ability of the instructor in charge.

This past week the agricultural class has been doing practical work and have sprayed orchards belonging to Messrs Schuelke, Members, Careys, Vincents and Burroughs.

The class of 1924, numbering fifteen members, will hold their exercises at the local gym on the night of Thursday, June 12th. Rhoda Jedele will give the Class Prophecy and Stanley Becker the Class History. Supt. of Schools J. Holt of Janesville has been secured to give the address of the evening. The high school orchestra will give several numbers.

The class play of the class of 1924, "The Hoodoo" will be given at the gym the night of Friday, June 6th. The orchestra will furnish numbers between acts. The director Mr. Reschke and the orchestra were also invited to appear at Bristol on that date but were forced to refuse.

Mrs. Hanneman and sons Fred and Floyd were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. John Gauger over the week end. Floyd Hanneman was ill during his stay here.

The seventh annual Alumni reunion and reception for the class of '24 of the U. F. H. school was held at the gym Saturday evening. The gym had been beautifully decorated in orange and white by the Juniors and the table decorations followed the same plan. Apple blossoms were used for floral decorations. All of the class of 1924 were present and a large number of former graduates and their friends. The banquet served by Miss Post of the Economics assisted by the Sophomores and Freshman girls left nothing to be desired.

Still the Home Run King

The way he's "sockin' the ol' pill around the lot" these days, it doesn't look like anything's happened to the batting eye of Babe Ruth. In fact, sporting editors around the country are hauling out the old number cuts again so that—every time the Babe slams one over the fan barriers—they can let their readers have the story in one number—viz, Home Run, No.—. Yes, indeed; it looks like the big pill man will keep his crown this season.

Goes Through Barricade; Lives Are in Peril

Breaking down a barricade on road construction at Loon Lake, where blasting work was in progress, a party of automobilists had a narrow escape from death early Wednesday.

The barricade had been put up to require motorists to detour but a party of automobilists believed to be from Chicago, drove through it. A heavy charge of dynamite had just been placed under a section of faulty concrete which was being removed and the fuse touched off. The spluttering fuse apparently attracted the attention of the motorists as they reached a point only a few feet from it because the machine was seen to make a rapid dash down the road and the occupants appeared to be preparing to leap from the car.

They succeeded in getting about 100 feet away from the spot where the charge was planted before the explosion came.

For a moment dirt and debris hid the car from view.

A few seconds later the car was seen dashing down the road as a shower of huge chunks of concrete showered the vicinity. Apparently the shower of debris did not damage the car to any great extent as workmen saw it continue in its retreat.

The sheriff's office later received a report about the machine going through the barricade and an investigation is being made to learn the identity of the violators.

A section of the Lake Villa-Antioch road which was constructed in a faulty manner by Contractor George R. Wade a year ago last fall is being blasted in order to rebuild it. The Southern Surety company is rebuilding the section, which is located about a mile and a quarter south of Antioch.

Suffragist—We believe that a woman should get a man's wages.
Married Man—Well, judging from my own experience, she does.

News Notes Taken From Other Papers

More than 20,000,000 dozen eggs were handled by three California organizations marketing poultry products in 1923, says the United States Department of Agriculture. Approximately one-fifth the total quantity was sold in New York City.

Five hundred eighty-one local or independent farmers' business organizations have reported to the United States department of Agriculture a combined aggregate business of nearly $150,000,000 for 1922, or an average of about $250,000 for each organization. In California 154 organizations reported an aggregate business of $65,000,000; in Florida 47 associations reported $10,500,000; in Washington 23 organizations reported $8,000,000; in New York 59 organizations reported $5,500,000, and in Michigan 35 associations reported $5,000,000. During the 10 years 1913 to 1922, inclusive, 67 associations that reported for both years reported that their volume in the aggregate increased from $17,000,000 in 1913 to $36,000,000 in 1922. Nearly 70 per cent of 1,103 associations reported collective buying.

Now that the bonus has been passed the thing that is worrying a great number of representatives and senators is how the money is going to be raised to pay the bonus.

Financial experts have estimated that the cost to the people of the country will be between $2,280,758,542 and $4,500,000,000. This money must come from the pockets of the tax payers. There is no provision in the pending tax bill for the money with which to pay the bonus, and even the wisest politicians are unable to explain how any real tax reduction measure can be passed in view of the recent action of congress.

President Coolidge has pointed out and insisted repeatedly that the taxes of the people must be reduced. The pending tax measure certainly will not provide enough revenue to allow the government to pay the bonus and at the same time produce enough money to pay its debts. It is not probable that the 28% reduction of taxes for 1923 that President Coolidge asked for can now be granted, but Coolidge will undoubtedly at the next session of congress demand a scientific revision of the tax program. Those responsible for the framing of the bonus bill did not arrange it so that the soldiers who expected immediate cash payments will get their money now, they will be disappointed, for the payments will not be made, even if some way is ultimately found to meet them, until March 1, 1925. The adjusted service certificates also will not be available until 1925. It is estimated that a force of 4,152 clerks will be required to handle the issuance of the certificates. This means just that many more employees on the government pay roll at the expense of the tax payer.

The cost of this clerk hire is estimated at $3,000,000. Unless some financial wizard can be found in congress, the money necessary to pay the several billions of dollars needed to provide for the bonus, the money will have to be raised by additional taxes, which will be levied upon the people.

RURAL CLASSIC IS NOW PHOTOPLAY

One of the most widely heralded of this season's photoplays is announced as coming on Sunday to the Crystal theatre. It is "Quincy Adams Sawyer," a Metro-SL picture based on the famous story of New England life which was a phenomenal "best seller" when it appeared a decade or so ago. So great was the popularity of the printed narrative by Charles Felton Pidgin that it was dramatized and in this form it won more favor. The elaborate photoplay version is even more interesting than the book or the play.

Everybody knows the story of "Quincy Adams Sawyer." Everybody knows and loves its quaint rustic characters. The story of the young lawyer from Boston, Quincy Adams Sawyer; his coming to the small town of Mason's Corner; his experiences in running down a disreputable scoundrel; his great love affair—all this is part of the attractive novel which is now a screen play. The delightful rural characters are fun-provoking to the extreme, and the fresh, clean, humor will appeal to all lovers of better photoplays.

A lavish production has been given this famous story. To enact the roles in the picture, the entire motion picture industry was searched for its best material. As a result, one of the highest-priced assemblages of talent is seen, and in the list are players who have been starred in their own right. Among the more important are Lon Chaney, Blanche Sweet, Barbara La Marr, John Bowers, Elmo Lincoln, Louise Fazenda, June Eyldge, Hank Mann, Zasu Pitts and many others.

"Quincy Adams Sawyer" was adapted from the novel by Bernard McConville. It was directed by Clarence B. Budger. The production was made by S. L. Arthur Sawyer-Herbert (Lubin) and is released by Metro.

SPACING

When he first came to see her, He showed a timid heart,
And when the lights were low,
They sat this far apart.
But when this love grew warmer
And learned the joy of a kiss,
They knocked out all the spaces
And sat up close together.

The shopkeeper brought the paper and Peter wrote on it: "Ten-cent can of tobacco."
